NEWSPAPER EDITING. - Few persons who have not been connected for any length of time with a daily newspaper, says the Boston Commercial Bulletin, can be aware of the ceaseless strain upon the capabilities of those whose unending duty it is to furnish a quota of news every day in the year-winter, spring, summer and fall—to supply the demands of the great public; nor can it be estimated until it is seriously undertaken. Rain or shine, sick or well, cheerful or gloomy-however unprepared the mind may be for the diurnal task—the columns of paragraphs must come, and must be furnished within given hours. Somebody has written a very effective poem about the "Slave of the Lamp." Could it have occurred to him that he was painting the portrait of an editor?

The man who, troubled with the cacoethes scribendi, "takes his pen in hand" when in the vein, and indites a paragraph or a com munication to the press, thinks, as he complacently reads his effusion the next morning, that after all, it is no such great work to write up a newspaper; but let him bend down to it a year, and be obliged to furnish matter for the types every day, and he will begin to feel some charity for the editor, and instead of judging him harshly, rather fall to wondering that he repeats himself so seldom-says so little that is not absolute trash, and finds so many topics to write upon.

Why, the mere manual labor of writing pages enough of manuscript to fill two or three columns in a daily newspaper would be a good day's work for many people. But when we add to this that of collecting the news about a city-of arranging the details of names, places, time and the comment and deductions necessarily attached to it-and then the task of mentally preparing all this to suit the publie demand, it will be admitted that the daily labor of the editorial room any other occupation. We do not, in this list, count the multifarious duties connected with the other departments of writing-the com mercial, the news summaries, the arranging of correspondence, the selections from interior papers, the patient perusal of contributions, which must, too often, after all, be rejected, &c.

A SKETCH OF FORT LARAMIE. - A corres pondent of the New Haven Palladium in Wy oming Territory, gives a pleasing description of Fort Laramie:

"It is situated ninety miles north of Cheyenne, and is accessible (over a good government road) by ambulance, or on horseback, the journey usually occupying two days. The Post is beautifully located at a bend of the Laramic river, which bounds it on two sides, from which the garrison is supplied with pure and most delicious water. A beautiful amphitheatre of bluffs, rising gradually from the plain on which the fort stands, bounds the horizon on all sides, and here from early spring to latest autumn the hillsides are enamelled with flowers of every hue. The air is dry and invigorating; during the winter just passed snow hes fallen but three times, and without any sensible melting or drifting it passes away, leaving neither mud nor even dampness. Not an inch of rain has tallen since last October, and yet the lack of moisture is never spoken or thought of as a need. The rainy season commences the last of April, and continues with frequent exceptions of bright days, till about the middle of June, and again from August until October.

"To those accustomed to the massive walls and ample defences of such forts as Trumbull, Lafayette or Schuyler, this unenclosed post in the midst of a hostile country would seem to serve only as a bait for successful attack; yet no word of fear has fallen from the lips of either of the sixteen ladies who have lent the attractions of their high culture and personal loveli ness to this outpost during the past winter, rendering it most truly an oasis in the desert. In the weekly reunions of the past winter no attractions (save the surroundings) of eastern social life has been wanting to cause the hours to pass on golden wings.'

Social Gossip. - We have occasionally read of aprons and ladies collars representing lace, with other small articles belonging to the toilette which were made of paper. We have heard it said that newspapers sewed together, made from their warmth, a good substitute for blankets when there was a scarcity of the latter, and most ladies have seen complete suits made of the most exquisite shades of tissue paper, trimmed with laces, gimp and fringes which at a short distance appeared astonishingly like the silk, laces and gimps, which they were intended to imitate. An occasional party has been given in New York, where every lady has worn a dress made of tissue paper, and if it were not for the rustling sound, which even the softest paper is not free from, the illusion, at a short distance would be complete. We have seen them worn with admirable effect at private theatricals. We read of the last use which paper has been put to, in a recent paper, where we find it recommended for coffins. As the expenses of burial are so enormous, we should imagine that any material which might help to lessen them would be welcome. Caskets, we understand, vary from $75 to $250.

GEN. T. T. FAUNTLEROY. - We were glad to see upon our streets a few days since, looking remarkably well, Gen. T. T. Fauntleroy, has been absent some months upon a visit in Washington. There were tew men in the South who made geater sacrifices for his section than Gen. Fauntleroy. He resigned a high rank in the old army and gave thousand over the Grover & Baker up a lucrative position to return to his native State, when the army of the nation was against her. Nor was that all; nearly all the hard carned savings of thirty years spent in the ser vice of his country were confiscated. But with all these trials upon him, in his advancing years, he yet bears himself gallantly, with a der, for sale cheap. genial smile and cordial greeting for the many afe by the consequence of deviacing from L path of nature, and indulging it a certain : cret habit. Such persons must, before contonplating MARRIAGE. reflect that a sound mind and body are the non accessary requisites to promote connubial happiness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prosp ct hourly darkens to the view, the mine becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melanchely reflection, that the happiness of another becomes blighted with your own. DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE. When the misguided and imprudent votars of pleasure ands that he has imbibed the seed of this painful disease it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discov-ery deters him from applying to these, wa from education and respectability, can alon befriend him, delaying till the constitutions symptoms of this horrid disease make their ap pearance, such as ulcerated sore threat, disease pearance, such as ulcerated sorethroat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity till at last the palate of the mouth or the face of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a herrid object of commissionation, till death puts a period to his drewiful sufferings, by sending him to that Undiscovered Country from whence no traveller returns.
